expensive. Three hours in the bright sunshine at golf, therefore, should store up more energy than is destroyed by the swinging of clubs and tramping over hill and dale, with the net result of renewed vitality.

Golf is rapidly becoming the great American game. It is a fine thing for a nation. By the same token it should be a fine thing for an organization, the regular occupation of which is of necessity sedentary. The proposer of slogans might well suggest for our organization—"More and better golf."

European News

COLONEL CARTER, who returned from London June 12, reports that the outlook in Germany is very encouraging. Under the Dawes plan Germany is rapidly becoming rehabilitated and the country is beginning to show signs of prospering.

Our Berlin office has been busy constantly since shortly after it was opened. Mr. Kracke, with a staff of several men, has engagements in hand which will require several months to execute. Prospective engagements give hopes for a continuation of the present satisfactory situation.

Effective June 1, the London office will be regarded as the principal office with respect to the conduct of the practice in Europe, the staff of that office constituting the source of supply for Paris and Berlin.

Mr. Kracke will remain in Berlin as resident partner until the organization of that office and correlation with other European and American offices have been satisfactorily completed.

Mr. Lovibond will return to London and will be stationed there as manager, although serving also as manager of the offices at Paris and Berlin.

Mr. Holding, under the new arrangement, has been made available for service on the Continent, particularly in Germany, where his familiarity with customs and conditions and knowledge of the language will make him exceedingly valuable.
